The Union Pacific Was Again the Main Object of Buyers.

THE FIRE WAS EXCITING

Blinding and Suffocating Smoke Pervaded the Exchange From Near-By Burning Buildings.

NEW YORK, March 20.—To-day's stock market was a small affair and trading centured again in Union Pacific. That stock fluctuated over a range of slightly more than a boint above last night's level, with constant reactions, and ended the day at an advance of 5-8. The sussession that the manner of distributing the Northern Securities' assets should be submitted to judicial decision was an unsettling influence upon the market, in spite of the various assurances and intimations from authorized sources that there was no danger of hostilities between the great forces concerned in the settlement. Some excitement was caused all through the Stock Exchange neighborhood by the outbreak of a dangerous fire near at hand on Broadway, and the clouds of binding and suffocating smoke pervaded the Exchange floor and the offices and the hallways of the great office building surrounding it.

Attention was thus diverted from the market, and the trading was quilt and languid.
